SUNDAY IS VALENTINE'S DAY and the day for the boys to give their girl friend a box of candy in a heart-shaped box. Those who don't usually spend many hours "making amends" for the oversight. In the above photo five-year-old Blue Morrow seems a bit embarrassed at being caught in the act of presenting Sherry Kennett (also 5) with symbolic token of his affections. Sherry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Kennett and Blue is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Lubert Morrow.

Judge Green Hears Tax Collector Pleas

A hearing was held Tuesday afternoon in the Elba Courthouse by Judge Riley Green on the subject of "Who is Tax Collector of Coffee County?" Judge Green heard arguments by Attorney Joe Cassidy of Enterprise, representing Mrs. Nell Cook and by Attorney Garth Lindsey of Elba representing Mr. Maxwell Reeves. Mrs. Cook was appointed by outgoing Governor Albert Brewer to fill the vacancy created when incumbent James Sawyer assumed the office of Probate Judge. He won election to that office last summer. Mr. Reeves was appointed to the office of incoming Governor George Wallace soon after he returned to the Governor's chair. Judge Green is expected to issue a ruling in the case in the next few days. It has been previously noted by observers that the case will probably be appealed to the State Supreme Court regardless of who wins this round, because no situation exactly like this one has ever occurred in Alabama. Presently Mrs. Cook is serving as Tax Collector and carrying out all the duties of that office.

DOUGLAS EASTERS was the guest at the Kinston Alumni Banquet held last Friday night, following the Kinston-Coffee Springs basketball game. He was introduced by Mr. E. C. Nevin, former principal of the school and presently President of the Opp Trade School. Pictured above are Easters, Principal James Helms, new Alumni President Harold Cain and outgoing alumni president Jim Rhoades. Other alumni officers elected for the coming year are Gerald Boland, vice president; Mrs. James Smith, secretary; and Mrs. Howard Smith, treasurer.

Highway Patrol Investigates Accidents

From 6:00 P.M. Friday through 12 midnight on Sunday the Alabama Highway Patrol investigated 139 accidents with 62 injuries and 7 fatalities. The fatalities occurred in the following counties: One each in Russell, Montgomery, Bay, Butler, Colbert and two in Lowndes. These accidents bring the number of people killed in Rural Alabama traffic accidents this year to 79 compared with 64 killed during the same period last year for an increase of 15 fatalities. Dothan district troopers investigated 13 accidents with 2 injuries and 1 fatality during this period. The Dothan district has 7 fatalities so far this year as compared with 6 at the same time last year. Colonel Walter L. Allen, state Director of Public Safety, reminds you when driving your automobile or other motor vehicle, to drive in such a manner as though your life depended on it - because it does. Coffee County troopers investigated 3 accidents this weekend with 1 injury and 0 fatalities. So far this year 1 person has been killed in motor vehicle traffic accidents in this county as compared with 1 killed during the same period last year.

TOURNAMENT PLANNED. The Elba High School Tigers will host a basketball tournament beginning next Tuesday, February 16. Two games are scheduled for Tuesday with two more set Thursday, one Friday and the final on Saturday. Members of the Elba team are shown with their coaches. They are from left: Coach Doug Carmichael, Jimmy Tyson, Donnie Holley, Ridgeway Berry, Finley Clark, Mark Wise, Skip Rainer, Eddie Robinson, Ronnie Powell and Assistant Coach Randy Griffin.

Football Banquet Is Set For Saturday Night

The Elba Quarterback Club is sponsoring a banquet for the members of the 1970 Elba High Football team. It will be held Saturday night at the Elba Elementary School luncheon room. Guest speaker for the evening will be Auburn University football coach Claude Sala. The event will begin at 7:30 and tickets are available from members of the Alabama, said. In prior years, only taxpayers who did not itemize and had incomes under $5,000 were required to use the tables. However, the Tax Reform Act of 1969 requires taxpayers to cover incomes up to $10,000 of those not itemizing. The new tables reflect the increased exemption deduction of $625 (up from $600) and the low-income allowance, Mr. Coppinger said. Persons who itemize deductions or who have incomes of $10,000 or more compute their own tax by using the tax rate schedules. Mr. Coppinger alerted taxpayers who are filing estimated tax declarations for 1971 to use the tax tables for that year since personal and dependency exemptions are $650 instead of $625 and the low-income allowance is limited to $1050.

FIRE almost totally destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Phillips in Kennedy Estates on Sunday. The fire was burning strong when the fire alarm sounded but fast work by the Elba fire department allowed the family to save items from the bedrooms but not before they suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

Blount, Wallace To Be Speakers For Cattlemen

Postmaster General Winston Blount and Governor George C. Wallace will be the keynote speakers at the 28th annual meeting of the Alabama Cattlemen's Association, Wednesday, February 17, at Montgomery's Jefferson Davis Hotel. E. H. Wilson, executive vice president of ACA, said more than 1200 cattlemen and their wives from every county of the state are expected to attend. Mr. Harold Hudson, president of the Coffee County Cattlemen's Association, will lead a large delegation of county cattlemen to the meeting. Mr. Hudson is a member of the board of directors of ACA. Wilson said the meeting is particularly significant since 1970 was a banner year for cattlemen, "ACA membership reached 12,137, making it the largest such association in the world." Blount, a native of Alabama, will deliver the address at the opening session; while Wallace, beginning his second term as Alabama's Chief Executive, will be speaker at the annual governor's luncheon. Also featured on the program will be Jerry Clower, Mississippi Chemical Corp., who will address a breakfast meeting for state and county officers, and Sheren Eleash, actor-singer-humorist, will entertain at the annual banquet. The CowBelles, ladies auxiliary of the ACA, will hold a business session, luncheon and fashion show at the Whitley Hotel. More than 400 women from around the state are expected to attend.

Post Office To Be Closed Next Monday

Flexnit's Tweave Panty Girdle

It Doesn't Look Or Feel Like A Girdle. Yet It Controls Like Heavier, Padded Girdles.

THERE ARE HUNDREDS of girdles at our house and already they have just about eaten up all the berries on nandinas and the hollies. We're told that the robin is the herald of spring, that his long-awaited warble seems to say "winter is over."

If you will notice the robin is not afraid of people and has the utmost confidence in the friendliness of man and carries on his affairs within arm's reach. He eats quantities of insects but more than half the diet consists of fruits and berries. We're told that a young robin eats 1400 of earthworms every day.

Early in September after the nesting season is over the robins roam for food until the signal is given to start off for the south. We usually begin seeing them in late February and early March when they start their trip back toward the north. They stay in this area for several weeks eating up all the berries on shrubs in yards and nearby wooded areas. They dig deep woods and make their home in branches of garden and lawn trees.

Tuesday morning the many robins at our house (settling up our red berries) were suffering from the cold and were unable to fly. They were huddled together in the branches of the trees, looking very uncomfortable.

Most girdle fabrics are knitted; tend to follow your shape; not control it. They stretch in all directions, but provide real control from side to side only. Extra panels are required for full control at hips and back.

New Tweave is woven. It's tighter, smoother and it controls in any direction you stretch it. You get full control without the confinement of heavy fabric and panels.

Short leg 11.00, average leg 12.00, long leg 13.00. With hose holding cuffs.

SAINT VALENTINE'S Day will always be exciting to me and next to Christmas it is the most fascinating of the special days.

For centuries February 14 has been observed as Saint Valentine's Day. Chaucer and other medieval writers speak of it as the day when the birds mated. Traditionally, February 14 is a day for lovers. In medieval times young people in England, Scotland and France used to assemble on Saint Valentine's Eve and draw names by chance from an urn. Each person then became the "valentine" that is, the special friend of the one whose name he drew. It is still customary on this date to exchange gifts, many of them heart-shaped, as an expression of affection. Friends send cards, flowers, or even more elaborate gifts and greetings.

I miss the mocking birds during the time the robins are roaming around at our house. In the beginning the mocking birds tried to chase them away but there were so many more robins they didn't have a chance. But there is one holy tree that the mockingbird still rules over and no robin dares to go near it. Occasionally one will attempt to get the berries from that particular holy tree but learns that it is forbidden territory. There is also a smaller bird that looks somewhat like the cardinal but not so colorful and much smaller that is stealing the berries at our house and they and the robins have some friction as to which gets them. The smaller birds came first and are still there and fly in large numbers so the robins have failed to get them to leave the territory.

I enjoy all the birds at our house but I do wish they would wait until later to eat up our red berries. These robins come right on up to our kitchen window with us standing right there and eat the bright red nandina berries.

"ONE OF THE great dangers of our liberalized day is not that we shall be so narrow-minded we become this, but that we shall be so broad-minded we become shallow. We are tempted to spread ourselves a mile wide and an inch deep. Seeking to avoid the intolerance of the bigot, we are inclined to fill into the nonchalance of the fool. In our enthusiasm for open-mindedness, we are tempted to become scatterbrained." From "EVERY WORKING taxpayer screams about the welfare system of this nation. Little did we think we'd find welfare being blamed for the decline in production of moonshine whiskey, but that's what an Associated Press story from Lexington, Ky., says. The story says that the art of preparing 'white lightning' is dying. An authority, a moonshine producer, says that his county once had 15 men that were talented in the art of making good corn whiskey. Today he says there are only three left. He blames part of the decline on the fact that the fellows are on 'happy Pappy' program or some other kind of welfare. Maybe Uncle Sam can start some type of government assistance program to preserve the art of moonshine." From The Detroit Lakes, Minn., Tribune.

"THE WALLACE indebtedness. All of which is to say that Gov. Wallace in the coming years may well drastically alter his posture on what has been his bread-and-butter issues of the past-school desegregation, federal intervention into state and local affairs, etc. This is not to say that he is to become a leader in the Civil Rights movement; but we all have a great deal more about some of the other issues which confront this state and nation. It could very well be a blessing for Alabama if Gov. Wallace does indeed speak with a soft voice on these still-inflaming issues. There is good reason to believe that during the next four years our state will attract more than its share of the unshaven and unwashed, all of them bent on wrecking havoc in the name of civil rights. They will come to Alabama simply because they have no other place to go. FASTER is gone, so are Barnett and Madrox. Only Wallace stands as the last symbol, and most assuredly they will come to test him. It is our hope and prayer that the second Wallace Administration will prove to be the greatest of our state's four years of peace, progress and prosperity. And whether we have peace and progress and prosperity will depend largely on one man—George C. Wallace." From South Magazine, Birmingham.

MONDAY afternoon ended badly a strange one for the personnel of this newspaper. At the end of the day we realized that someone from the place had been traveling in every direction. Mr. McIsaac traveled northeast, Larry and Merle traveled south, Gary went west and I traveled east. The grand-girls said "all they did was go to school." Mack was in Enterprise, Gary in Andalusia, Larry and Merle in DeFuniak Springs and I went to Geneva. What a day!

"You can relax now dear—the TV camera has swung elsewhere."

"THE WALLACE indebtedness. All of which is to say that Gov. Wallace in the coming years may well drastically alter his posture on what has been his bread-and-butter issues of the past-school desegregation, federal intervention into state and local affairs, etc. This is not to say that he is to become a leader in the Civil Rights movement; but we all have a great deal more about some of the other issues which confront this state and nation. It could very well be a blessing for Alabama if Gov. Wallace does indeed speak with a soft voice on these still-inflaming issues. There is good reason to believe that during the next four years our state will attract more than its share of the unshaven and unwashed, all of them bent on wrecking havoc in the name of civil rights. They will come to Alabama simply because they have no other place to go. FASTER is gone, so are Barnett and Madrox. Only Wallace stands as the last symbol, and most assuredly they will come to test him. It is our hope and prayer that the second Wallace Administration will prove to be the greatest of our state's four years of peace, progress and prosperity. And whether we have peace and progress and prosperity will depend largely on one man—George C. Wallace." From South Magazine, Birmingham.

MONDAY afternoon ended badly a strange one for the personnel of this newspaper. At the end of the day we realized that someone from the place had been traveling in every direction. Mr. McIsaac traveled northeast, Larry and Merle traveled south, Gary went west and I traveled east. The grand-girls said "all they did was go to school." Mack was in Enterprise, Gary in Andalusia, Larry and Merle in DeFuniak Springs and I went to Geneva. What a day!

25 years in the making.

We'd like to thank the makers of the other new economy cars for giving us such a nice head start. It gave us time to develop an inspection system so radically scrupulous that it expects every VW to pass 16,000 examinations. It allowed us to find out, in a reasonably scientific, practical way how we could double our horsepower without doubling the cost of your horsepower. The VW still gets about 26 miles to the gallon and requests only a smidgen of oil!

It permitted us to work on things that didn't even have to do with the actual making of the car. Mercedes, for example. Electronic equipment that can spot trouble in a car before it gets to be trouble. When you buy a new VW, you get 4 free Medi-car checkups. Of course, it took great fortitude to resist squandering our time on phony styling improvements. The beetle looks just as good (or bad) as it did 25 years ago.

BRAINSTORMS

With Ferrin Cox

The Alabama Motorist Association is pushing for changing Alabama from Central Standard Time to Eastern Standard Time. This means starting everything one hour earlier plus daylight savings in the summer starting things another hour earlier! Representative Douglas Easters has pledged to convey the wishes of the people of Coffee County and on this issue has asked a few complaints and a petition with 150 names in favor of the change. Mine was one of the few against voices, therefore, I am calling for assistance--let Doug know your feelings. NOW!

Owen Zidar is bouncing around the sales department at Cook Chevrolet these days. He tried to sell me a car this week but any good car salesman knows you can't sell to them that ain't got! Anyway if you are looking for Owen he is either at the Chevrolet place or supposed to be there.

As I was leaving the fire in Kennedy Estates Sunday, a group of young men caught my attention. They were about a block away from the action and telling each other just what the firemen should be doing and in rather strong language. This is not the first time this has happened, but what was more noticeable about it was that the house was owned by a Negro, these were Negroes and not a single Negro was fighting the fire! Elba has a volunteer fire department so if you and I don't like the results, we can start going to drills ourselves.

One thing glaring out Sunday was that there was no firetrucks in Kennedy Estates. A hose had to be pulled from the Taylor Mill Road which was in the subdivision. This may be legal distance but that is a long way and would take even more hose to reach the other houses in that area.

How fast we take things for granted! After watching the astronauts blast off for the moon, the whole thing slipped from my mind for several days. It was only a few months ago that I followed every detail of the trip to and from the moon and read everything written for several weeks afterwards. Now the Europeans seemed bored with the whole issue and I feel a little guilty for my inattention to such a marvelous feat.

Attended the Kingston homecoming basketball game and banquet last Friday night, thanks to Jim Rhoades. The game with Coffee Springs went into the third overtime before a winner emerged. A hungry photographer that can't eat until after a ballgame is over can sure hope anyone wins as long as they do it soon. Maybe it was because of the long wait, but that was some game.

The Valentine picture of Sherry Kennett and Blue Morrow is not the one planned. While explaining to them the idea of a girl giving his girl friend a box of candy their reaction was caught on film and nature will always be better than any posed picture! Sherry, with her stuffed animal, rocket over on the side of her shoes as she saw Blue react as most boys his age would react to the thought of a girlfriend.

Member of Congress
Third District of Ala.

Take an unpopular war, a government which thinks money can buy anything, and plenty of people who take a "let George do it" attitude about military service, and you've got the basis for the current demand for an all-volunteer military establishment in this nation.

One of the many unfortunate byproducts of the endless Vietnam War, it is highly speculative, expensive, impractical, and worst of all - dangerous.

With opposition to the War in Vietnam strongly motivating their demands for an end to the draft, many Congressional supporters of an all-volunteer military force claim that it will produce a more efficient military.

What organization couldn't be more efficient? We are not still bogged down in Vietnam because our military forces are inefficient. We are there because they have not been allowed to do the job for which they have been trained and at considerable expense to American taxpayers.

The first and foremost consideration in any talk of draft reform or abolishment should be the ability of this nation to adequately defend itself -- on short notice, if need be -- and to meet its military commitments abroad.

In my judgment, an all-volunteer military establishment, highly paid or not, places our ability to perform both functions in serious jeopardy.

The President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force, established in 1969, and headed by former Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates, recommended the establishment of an all-volunteer force, supported by a stand-by draft, and a large increase in pay for first-term enlisted men and junior officers.

The Commission gave two estimates of military manpower requirements -- 2.5 million men and 3 million men. It further estimated that at least half of the 500,000 men who have enlisted each year for the first time in the last few years were "true" volunteers who would have enlisted had there been no draft.

Therefore, concluded the Commission, only 75,000 to 150,000 new volunteers need to be enlisted each year, and these can come from the 1.5 million physically and mentally fit men turning 19 each year by raising the pay for first-term enlistees.

However, we had 3.5 million men in uniform in 1967 and without a large reduction in our foreign commitments, the Commission's recommended 3 million taining both officers and enlisted men. First-term enlistees are re-enlisting at a rate of about 9 percent, compared to 23 percent in 1965.

The notion that an all-volunteer armed force will be more efficient because the volunteers will be highly motivated, work harder, and stay in the service longer, rests on shaky ground.

Rather than attracting those with the technological skills to maintain a modern sophisticated armed force, the first-term pay increase offer would most likely attract the unskilled and under-educated. This situation would lead to remedial training and generally poor performance.

While the Gates Commission said an all-volunteer force could cost the country an additional $3.24 billion, the Department of Defense estimated in 1966 that an all-volunteer force of 2.5 million men would cost between $4 billion and $7 billion each year, depending on the state of the economy.

In addition to the problems of an all-volunteer force, the Commission's suggested stand-by draft would be hard pressed to meet most emergency situations fast enough.

The highly-paid professional all-volunteer military force sounds more like a mercenary force and conceivably could take on the character of true mercenaries, looking for a battle anywhere, regardless of national interest.

Steps have been made to end inequities in the draft, and I am confident that efforts to this end will be continued. They will continue to receive my strong support.

However, rather than a mercenary force, I prefer a system that insures that a large cross-section of America, mostly civilian-oriented, will be represented throughout the Armed Forces. This will at least insure that the military with the Rev. Johnny B. Spurlin and the Rev. Comar Harrison officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery, Hayes Funeral Home directing.

City Loses Case In Trailer Suit

The City of Elba lost a law suit contesting the Trailer Park Ordinance last year by the City Council. The suit was brought by Mr. Roy Watkins who was refused electric service to a trailer he set up on space that previously had a trailer but was moved.

Watkins took the case to court and Judge Riley Green ruled that the section of the law concerning existing house trailers and replacing them was not legal.

At press time Tuesday evening the City Council was in session and had made no announcement concerning their choice to appeal the case. However, City Clerk Tom Dyess had been instructed not to authorize the connection of any trailers except in trailer parks until after the Councilman had met and acted on the matter.

Wet - Dry Petitions Are Now Circulating

A movement has been started in Enterprise to hold a referendum on legalizing the sale of alcoholic beverages in Coffee County. The action was announced in Enterprise last week.

Spokesman for the group E. A. Phillips, said volunteers are working in Enterprise now and will be soliciting signatures in Elba soon on petitions to call the election.

To have the election called, qualified voters equal to one-fourth of the number who voted in the last general election must sign a petition calling for the referendum. This means that 2,375 valid signatures will be required on the petition before Probate Judge James Sawyer has to order the referendum.

Alabama law required that the election be held not less than 30 nor more than 45 days after the date of filing the petitions. An advertisement in this issue of the Clipper urges voters not to sign the petitions. The ad says it would cost $3000 to hold an election and the money can be put to a better use.

At the meeting, the State delegation was told that it is essential that they develop a "Reap Investment plan that will serve as the basis for using the program's allotted funds to help solve the urgent conservation and pollution problems in your state."

The speaker was Ray Hunter, Director of the ASCS Conservation and Land Use Programs Division.

Max Reeves Ruled Tax Collector For Coffee

Circuit Judge Riley Green ruled last Thursday that Max Reeves was the properly appointed Tax Collector for Coffee County.

Green said in a seven page opinion that there was no vacancy at the time Mrs. Nell Y. Cook was appointed to the office. Judge Green ruled that there was no vacancy existing until midnight January 18th.

The Judge covered the part of the law dealing with "certainty to be a vacancy" in the following manner: "...neither the governor then in office nor any other person, except all-wise Providence, could surely say on January 15, 1971, that a vacancy was sure to occur in the office of Tax Collector of Coffee County, Alabama."

Mr. Reeves assumed the office on Friday morning following the order by Judge Green.

Mrs. Cook has 10 days from the date of the court order to file an appeal with the Alabama Supreme Court. She says that she will act on the advice of her attorney (Joe Cassidy) and that he is presently advising that an appeal be made.

Cassidy was not available for comment at press time.
